

President's Message

This issue of the APCRI journal is being brought out at the 15th Annual Conference of APCRI, in Pune, Maharashtra.

APCRI, being a national body aims to project itself on a National basis and always tries to use its conferences to present its objectives and goals to control Rabies in different states and Union Territories of India. This is the first time that the APCRI conference is being held in Maharashtra.

The medical and veterinary profession of Maharashtra has been highly motivated in the organization of this conference and I understand that the Government of Maharashtra is supporting the conference by sponsoring a large number of government medical doctors. In addition many Medical colleges of Maharashtra especially those based in Pune have gone out of the way in helping the organizers. It is sincerely hoped that all the participants to the conference will use this opportunity to hear eminent experts from different parts of India and abroad on all aspects of Rabies with special reference to its control. A very impressive Scientific Programme has been drawn up. I would like to thank all members of my team for organizing this conference and for their unstinted support and encouragement given to me and having the confidence in my leadership to make APCRI one of the most respectable Rabies organization in India.
